Face Recognition

By Felix Lier (University of Stuttgart)

Oh fuck, fuck, fuck! This cannot be happening right now!

Face recognition denied. You have no authority to issue that command.

"What do you mean: 'No authority'? I am the commanding officer here!"

Face recognition denied. Proceeding with the launch of nuclear missiles. Launch in T-5 minutes.

These damn engineers. Why did they have to install this new AI control software, two months before my retirement!

"Listen here you cursed tin box! No one gave the order to launch the missiles, so abort it immediately!"

Face recognition denied. You have no authority to issue that command.

Shit! What if it was hacked? Or is this maybe some sort of Skynet thing? I swear to god, if we somehow survive this, I will tear the guy who installed this a new one. Why now? Why in my shift? I am THIS close to finally retiring.

Now, how can I shut this damn thing off? Did I look different when they did the face scan? Please, don't tell me its the moustache. Did I smile?!

Face recognition denied. You have no authority to issue that command.

No, that was not it. Maybe it needs more light to see my face better.

"How about here. Do you recognise me now?"

Face recognition denied. Launch in T-1 minutes. Prepare for launch.

AARGGHHH!

Glasses! I wore glasses that day! Fuck, where did I put them.

Launch in T-30 seconds. T hey have to be here somewhere. In the drawer? No. In the suitcase?

Launch in T-10 seconds. Brace for launch.

Got them! Stop! Abort the launch! Here, it's me. You see?

Good Day General Collins. The missile launch has been aborted. How are you doing today, sir? How is the renovation coming along?